MISSOULA--

The President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports (PCPFS) will conduct its first in-state physical fitness clinic here next month for Montana physical education teachers and administrators and physical fitness experts.

The 1 1/2 day clinic will begin Oct. 24 in the Women's Center at the University of Montana. It will highlight the convention of the Montana Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation (MAHPER) at UM Oct. 23-25.

Registration for the convention will be from 8 a.m.-11:30 a.m. in the UM Women's Center Oct. 23. All interested persons are invited to attend.

The Council will show how to identify and assist the physically underdeveloped by demonstrating activities such as jogging, aquatics, gymnastics, soccer, wrestling and rhythm.

Clinic discussions will focus on the latest research findings on the relationship of physical activity to learning and behavior.

Council staff from Washington, D.C., participating in the clinic will include:

Simon McNeely, director of Federal-State relations for the PCPFS; Dr. William Haskell, PCPFS program director; Dr. Frank Hayden, director of physical education and recreation of the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation, and Muriel Grossfeld, coach of the 1968 U.S. Women's Olympic Gymnastic team.

Also participating will be Joan Sullivan, director of physical education, Portland Community College, Portland, Ore., and C. Carson Conrad, of Sacramento, chief of the California Bureau of Health and Physical Education.

PHYSICAL FITNESS CLINIC--2--

The PCPFS was established by President Johnson, March 4, 1968, to "expand opportunities to engage in exercise, active recreation and sports." The Council is a continuation of the President's Council on Physical Fitness, established by President Kennedy Jan. 8, 1963.

Dr. John Dayries, a UM assistant professor^{of}/health and physical education, is convention manager and local coordinator for the PCPFS.
